MESSAGE

Minister

Ministry of Commerce

It is my pleasure to acknowledge the organization of the 25th Textech Bangladesh, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh International Expo 2026, to be held from 2 to 5 September 2026 at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Center, Purbachal, Dhaka and to extend my sincere appreciation to CEMS-Global for bringing together exhibitors, investors and industry leaders from across the globe on this important platform.

As the ministry responsible for textiles, jute and industrial development, our mandate is to safeguard and expand one of the nation's most vital economic sectors, one that spans spinning, weaving, dyeing and finishing and touches the livelihoods of millions of workers across the country. Guiding the growth of both private enterprise and state-owned industrial units remains central to our work, as we strive to balance modernization with employment generation and rural industrial revival.

Bangladesh's textile and apparel sector remains the backbone of our export economy, having earned $38.70 billion from ready-made garment exports in FY2025-26, contributing to a total national export earning of $48 billion. As we advance further into the era of 4IR and Digital Transformation, our industry must move beyond volume-driven manufacturing toward innovation, sustainability and technological excellence.

Under the leadership of our Honourable Prime Minister, Tarique Rahman, the government has taken concrete steps to reinvigorate our industrial base. Just recently, the Prime Minister directed the completion of the process to reopen and privatize long-closed state-owned textile and jute mills by the end of 2026, with nearly 44 closed mills being transferred to private management to attract fresh investment and restore production and employment. This reflects our government's clear commitment to institutional reform, industrial revival and investment-friendly policy.

Platforms such as this expo play a vital role in bridging global technology with local capability, giving our manufacturers access to smart machinery, sustainable processes and international best practices.

I wish the exhibitions great success and look forward to witnessing the innovations that will shape the future of our industry.

Khandaker Abdul Muktadir, MP

Secretary

Ministry of Textiles & Jute

It gives me great satisfaction to note that, the organization of the 25th Textech Bangladesh 2026 International Expo, the 26th Dhaka Int'l Yarn & Fabric Show 2026 – Summer Edition and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh International Expo 2026, organized by CEMS-Global, to be held from 2 to 5 September 2026 at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Center, Purbachal, Dhaka. Bringing together the entire textile value chain under one platform is a significant contribution to our industry's continued growth.

Our textile, apparel and jute industries remain vital pillars of the national economy, generating large-scale employment, driving industrial development and contributing substantially to export earnings across the manufacturing base.

This growth increasingly depends on modernization, from advanced machinery and automation to digitalization and improved manufacturing processes that raise productivity and product quality. Equally important is strengthening domestic yarn and fabric production, moving toward higher-value products through diversification and deepening backward and forward linkages that reduce our dependence on imported inputs.

Modern dyeing and processing technologies remain essential to this progress, ensuring quality, efficiency and responsible chemical management that meets international compliance standards. Alongside this, our commitment to sustainability, efficient water and energy use, waste reduction and eco-friendly production, continues to strengthen Bangladesh's position as a responsible global sourcing destination.

Our jute sector, too, is undergoing meaningful transformation, moving beyond traditional products toward innovative, high-value goods that respond to growing global demand for sustainable materials.

We remain committed to encouraging investment, fostering collaboration among manufacturers, suppliers and technology providers and strengthening skills development across the sector.

I commend CEMS-Global for organizing these exhibitions and thank all exhibitors and participants for their contribution to our sector's development. I extend my best wishes for a successful and productive exhibition.

Vice Chairman & Chief Executive

Export Promotion Bureau (EPB)

I take this opportunity to appreciate CEMS-Global's Textile Series of Exhibitions, featuring the 25th Textech Bangladesh, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh International Expo 2026, to be held from 2 to 5 September 2026 at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Center, Purbachal. For EPB, this convergence of technology, materials and international business represents exactly the kind of platform our export-oriented industries need to stay connected with global suppliers and markets.

Textiles and apparel remain the anchor of Bangladesh's export economy and our task now is to move beyond volume toward greater value, sophistication and diversification, expanding into technical, functional and performance textiles that respond to a fast-changing global demand landscape, while strengthening Bangladesh's reputation as a reliable manufacturing and sourcing destination.

This transformation depends heavily on technology. Advanced machinery, automation and digitalization are no longer optional upgrades but essential tools for maintaining precision, productivity and shorter lead times in an increasingly competitive export market.

Equally central is sustainability, resource efficiency, green production and circularity which are fast becoming prerequisites for meeting the ESG and compliance expectations of international buyers and Bangladesh's progress here is increasingly a genuine export advantage. Exhibitions of this scale strengthen the connections between our manufacturers and international buyers, suppliers and technology partners, generating the market intelligence and relationships that build more resilient global value chains.

Textech, the Yarn & Fabric Show and Dye+Chem together offer a complete view of what our export readiness requires. I commend CEMS-Global for organizing this platform and look forward to the commercial and technological linkages it will generate.

Federation of Bangladesh Chambers of Commerce and Industry (FBCCI)

It is indeed my great pleasure to know that, CEMS-Global's is going to organize series of exhibitions including 25th Dhaka International Textech Bangladesh 2026, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show 2026, and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh 2026 which will bring together Bangladesh's textile, manufacturing, and business communities in one platform. I'm sure this year's gathering will reflect the sectors dynamism and investment potential, connecting domestic enterprises directly with international technology providers and business partners.

Textiles and apparel remain a defining pillar of our economy-driving employment, exports, and industrialization while sustaining a wide network of supporting businesses across the value chain. This growth continues to rest on the strength of our private sector, whose entrepreneurship and investment remain central to building productive industrial capacity. Expanding trade, diversifying export markets and products, are dependent on wider access to modern machinery, automation, and digital tools that benefits that must reach large manufacturers and SMEs alike.

It is equally important for us to build a more resilient industry through green manufacturing, efficient energy and water use, and stronger circularity and environmental compliance. These efforts position our businesses to withstand shifting global market conditions.

Exhibitions such as these serve as vital B2B platforms, connecting local manufacturers with global suppliers, buyers, and investors, while encouraging the technology transfer that strengthens Bangladesh's place in global value chains. The FBCCI remains committed to fostering collaboration among chambers, associations, and policymakers to support this growth.

FBCCI extends of best wishes to all exhibitors and participants for a successful and productive exhibition.

Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BGMEA)

Bangladesh's RMG and textile industry has built one of the world's strongest manufacturing bases through decades of hard work, perseverance and resilience. Today, however, our industry is moving beyond volume towards greater value addition, diversification, innovation and technological sophistication.

Our goal is to keep Bangladesh at the forefront of the transformation taking place in the global apparel industry through artificial intelligence, automation, smart manufacturing and green technologies. Embracing innovation is essential to enhancing productivity, producing higher-value products and strengthening Bangladesh's position as a trusted hub for sustainable and responsibly made apparel.

From this perspective, on behalf of the Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BGMEA), I would like to commend CEMS-Global for organising the 25th Textech Bangladesh, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show, and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh International Expo 2026.

Taking place from 2 to 5 September 2026 at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Center, Purbachal, these exhibitions will bring together manufacturers, technology providers, suppliers and international partners, creating an important platform for collaboration, knowledge exchange and access to the innovations shaping our industry's future.

We appreciate CEMS-Global, the exhibitors and our international partners for contributing to the continued development of Bangladesh's textile and apparel ecosystem. Together, we look forward to a future where "Made in Bangladesh" stands for greater value, innovation, sustainability and global excellence.

President

Bangladesh Knitwear Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BKMEA)

Knitwear has grown into one of the most dynamic segments of Bangladesh's apparel export economy, and as the voice of the country's knitwear manufacturers and exporters, BKMEA sees CEMS-Global's Textile Series of Exhibitions, anchored by the 25th Textech Bangladesh, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show, and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh International Expo 2026, exhibiting from 2nd- 5th September 2026 at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Center, Purbachal, as essential touchpoints for an industry that continues to expand in both capability and complexity.

Our sector's strength lies in an increasingly integrated value chain, spinning, knitting, dyeing, finishing and garmenting working in closer coordination. The knitwear sector generates approximately 75% domestic value addition supported by strong backward linkage and local sourcing that gives Bangladeshi knitwear its supply-chain resilience.

Building on this, our manufacturers are moving decisively toward higher-value output, developing fashion, functional and performance-oriented knit products through innovation in fibers, blends and finishes that respond to fast-shifting consumer demand.

This progress depends on continued investment in modern knitting technology, automation and digital production management to improve efficiency and lead times, matched by advances in yarn and fabric innovation developed jointly with our fabric and garment partners.

Sustainability has long been more than a talking point for our sector, it is where our members have led by example. Bangladesh's knitwear industry is home of 291 LEED-certified green garment factories, holding the largest share of the world's green factory initiative. A distinction built on reduced water, adopt renewable energy and safe chemical use. Wider inclusion of recycled and preferred fibers, and circular production models, recognized Bangladesh as the world's leading green sourcing hub, not merely a follower of global sustainability standards.

BKMEA remains committed to supporting this transformation, encouraging innovation and the specialized skills our workforce needs for an increasingly automated production environment.

We thank CEMS-Global and all participating exhibitors for building a platform where our industry's evolving needs, machinery, materials and processing technology, come together, and we look forward to Bangladesh's continued strength as a competitive global knitwear sourcing destination.

President

Dhaka Chamber of Commerce & Industry (DCCI)

It gives me great pleasure to extend my warmest congratulations and sincere appreciation to CEMS-Global on the occasion of the landmark 25th Edition of the Bangladesh Textile Series of Exhibitions. Over the past quarter-century, this series has evolved into the nation's most influential gateway for international sourcing and technological exchange, playing a pivotal role in synchronising our local industry with the global marketplace.

The textile and apparel sector stands as the foundation of Bangladesh's private sector, serving as the primary engine of our industrial growth and a symbol of our global manufacturing prowess. Building upon this foundation, the 25th Bangladesh Textile Series, integrating the 25th Textech Bangladesh, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show, and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh, serves as a comprehensive blueprint for the industry's future. By convening at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Center from September 2 to 5, 2026, this platform will showcase the cutting-edge machinery, digital automation, and sustainable chemical solutions that are set to redefine our industrial landscape.

For the private sector, the textile value chain is a vital ecosystem that drives large-scale employment, fuels domestic investment and sustain a broad array of services ranging from finance to logistics. However, as Bangladesh transitions towards LDC graduation, the industry must navigate a strategic shift towards high-value added production. This evolution necessitates significant investment in state-of-the-art machinery and digital integration. Aligning our industrial practices with international sustainability standards is no longer optional, it is a fundamental prerequisite for maintaining our competitive edge on the global stage.

In this context, the Textile Series serves as an unparalleled bridge, connecting global innovators with Bangladesh's visionary manufacturers and industry leaders. Platforms of this caliber are essential catalysts for industrial evolution, enabling businesses to forge strategic joint ventures, harvest critical market intelligence, and adopt the technologies that will underpin commercial excellence in the years ahead.

I applaud CEMS-Global for their enduring dedication to providing this vital platform. I am certain that the 2026 Textile Series will not only cultivate high-impact business alliances but also unlock the investment opportunities necessary to sustain Bangladesh's economic momentum over the coming decade.

I extend my best wishes to all participants, exhibitors, and the organizers for an exceptionally productive and successful event.

American Chamber of Commerce in Bangladesh

The convergence of CEMS-Global's-a valued member of AmCham Textile Series of Exhibitions, including the 25th Textech Bangladesh 2026 International Expo, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show 2026 Summer Edition, and the 53rd Dye+Chem Bangladesh International Expo 2026, represents a significant international business platform, bringing Bangladesh's textile industry into direct dialogue with global technology providers, sourcing partners, and business communities.

The textile and apparel sector remains a important sector of Bangladesh-US commercial relations, and AmCham sees continued opportunities to deepen engagement between American and Bangladeshi companies across this value chain. Bangladesh's position as a major global sourcing destination increasingly depends on reliability, quality, and compliance-factors that directly influence how international buyers and global brands assess long-term partnerships. This sector contribute immensely to the economy of Bangladesh.

We see significant potential for greater American investment in Bangladesh's textile and apparel sector, spanning machinery, materials, services, and technology, supported by joint ventures and meaningful knowledge transfer. This potential is closely aligned with the sector's broader transformation toward automation, digital manufacturing, and value-added production, as well as its growing focus on sustainability and ESG, energy efficiency, water conservation, and circularity-priorities that are increasingly central to global sourcing and investment decisions.

Textech, the Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show, and Dye+Chem each contribute a distinct and complementary dimension to this ecosystem, bringing together machinery, materials, technologies, and processing solutions while creating tangible opportunities for cross-border partnerships and business development.

AmCham remains committed to strengthening dialogue and collaboration between the American and Bangladeshi private sectors. We look forward to seeing these exhibitions generate new commercial opportunities, foster stronger business partnerships, and further contribute to the continued growth and global competitiveness of Bangladesh's textile and apparel industry, thus contributing to Bangladesh's economy toward a Trillion Dollar one by 2034.

25th Bangladesh edition of textile expo to begin 2 September

Daily Sun Report, Dhaka

The CEMS-Global USA is set to organise the 25th Bangladesh edition of its textile series of exhibitions from 2 to 5 September at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Exhibition Centre (BCFEC) in the capital.

The landmark edition will bring together three international exhibitions – the 25th Textech Bangladesh 2026 International Expo, the 26th Dhaka International Yarn & Fabric Show 2026 and the 53rd DyeChem Bangladesh 2026 International Expo – under one roof.

Meherun N Islam, president and group managing director of CEMS-Global USA & Asia-Pacific disclosed the development at the press conference held at a hotel in Dhaka on Wednesday.

CEMS-Global USA Group CEO S S Sarwar; Executive Director Tanveer Qamrul Islam; and Group Director Abhishek Das were present in the programme.

Meherun said the exhibition series has been held in Bangladesh for 25 years, connecting local textile and apparel manufacturers with international suppliers of machinery, technology, yarn, fabrics, trims, accessories, dyes, chemicals and other production solutions.

She hoped that the four-day event is expected to bring together international manufacturers and suppliers and representatives of Bangladesh's textile and apparel industry. The three exhibitions will cover different segments of the textile and apparel manufacturing value chain. Textech Bangladesh will showcase textile and apparel machinery, automation, digital manufacturing systems and other production technologies, while the Yarn & Fabric Show will feature yarn, fabrics, trims and accessories, she added.

Meherun highlighted that DyeChem Bangladesh will showcase dyes, pigments, textile chemicals, auxiliaries and specialty chemical solutions, including products aimed at sustainable processing, resource efficiency and cleaner textile manufacturing.

She added that the event will provide manufacturers, factory owners, production managers, merchandisers, sourcing professionals, engineers, designers, buying houses and other industry stakeholders with opportunities to explore new technologies, assess suppliers, develop sourcing relationships and establish international business partnerships.

The exhibition series has evolved into an annual B2B platform for the sector, facilitating technology transfer, sourcing, networking and cross-border collaboration, according to her.

Meherun said the next phase of growth in Bangladesh's textile and apparel industry would increasingly depend on technology, productivity, innovation, diversification, sustainability and value addition.
